NORTHROP QUILTS POST; SAYS CARR INCITES STRIKES

Labor Chief Says Strikes Have Increased 400
Percent

APPROPRIATION IS CUT

Raps Slashing of Appropriation of Department by $678,000

HARRISBURG, July 15.—Dr. A. M. Northrup, of Wilkes-Barre, has resigned as Secretary of Labor and Industry.

He charged that the appropriation for his department had been cut $678,000, "mainly due to the activities of Miss Charlotte E. Carr," and indirectly accused Miss Carr, Deputy Secretary of the Labor Department, of fomenting strikes in Pennsylvania industries.

Governor Pinchot accepted the resignation, effective August 1, and branded the implied accusations against Miss Carr as "ridiculous."

It was reported around the Capitol today that Miss Carr will be named to succeed Dr. Northrup. Governor Pinchot declined to comment.

If Miss Carr becomes the Secretary, she will be the first woman to hold that important post and the second woman cabinet officer in the Pinchot administration. Miss Alice Liveright, of Philadelphia, is Secretary of Welfare.

There have been rumors that Dr. Northrup resented the influence wielded in his department by his deputy.

Their disagreement is said to have become more acute since the institution of the sweatshop investigation by a joint legislative committee. Dr. Northrup is said to have resented the activities of Miss Carr and minor officials of his department in gathering evidence for the committee.

Dr. Northrup made public his resignation before he informed Governor Pinchot of his intention.

The letter of resignation, which he handed personally to the Governor follows:

"Dear Governor:
"As Secretary of the Department of Labor and Industry I have had the honor of serving as a member of your Cabinet for the past two and one-half years.

"During this period the appropriations to this department have been cut 37 per cent or $678,000, mainly due to the activities of Miss Charlotte E. Carr, brought here from New York to assume the duties of Deputy Secretary. Through these activities strikes in Pennsylvania have increased more than 400 per cent, comparing the first three months with the second three months of 1933.

"As Secretary of Labor and Industry, after careful study, I do not believe this is the time to foment strikes when the working man is desperately in need of employment and the employer is so seriously handicapped by industrial conditions. Both labor and industry inevitably suffer when strife and hatred are employed to settle differences.

"As the Secretary of this Department, I should not take a partisan stand, it being my duty to administer my office in an impartial manner. Not being permitted to conduct my office according to this standard, I respectfully submit my resignation effective August 1."

"I regret very deeply the terms in which Dr. Northrup has submitted his resignation," the Governor said. "They will do more harm than good.

"The charge that any employee of the Department of Labor and Industry is fomenting strikes is ridiculous.

"The Department has done more recently than ever before to prevent and settle strikes, and has been co-operating closely and effectively with the Federal Government. Industrial unrest, which is world-wide, cannot be laid at its door."

For some time Miss Carr has been regarded as virtual head of the Department. She is said to be close to Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor. Mrs. Pinchot, a member of the Sweatshop Investigating Committee, has taken a very active part in its work.

Dr. Northrup, a Wilkes-Barre physician, was appointed to the $10,000 a year post by Governor Pinchot when the Governor began his second term in January, 1931.

Dr. Northrup is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania Medical School, but never practiced his profession, devoting his time to the lumber business and banking interests.

HOLDS PLAN IN ABEYANCE

Washington, D. C., July 15.—President Roosevelt today held in abeyance a decision on the proposal for a blanket 35-hour week and minimum wages for industry, as a new burst of co-operation of employers caused some of his aids to hope that the drastic step may be avoided. The President is expected to make a final determination of the policy he will pursue; to wit, lagging industry into line under the industrial recovery act, during his week-end cruise on the Potomac River.

General Hugh S. Johnson, industrial recovery administrator, was engaged in making a new, quick survey of the attitude of industrial industries on fair codes or competition. This survey will be laid before President Roosevelt tomorrow. An appeal to the nation for voluntary co-operation to speed the formation of industrial codes—with short work weeks and minimum wages—apparently had been abandoned by the President.

LINDBERGH AT CARTWRIGHT

Cartwright, Labrador, July 15.—Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh today settled down for a week's stay in this northern outpost which they will use as a base for several survey flights along the coast. With Mrs. Lindbergh acting as radio operator, the couple arrived here last night after a two stage journey from St. Johns, Newfoundland.

PINCHOT CONSIDERS REGAN'S SUCCESSOR

Harrisburg, July 15.—Governor Gifford Pinchot had "under consideration" today the appointment of a successor to Judge Thomas M. J. Regan of the Philadelphia Municipal Court, who was on the bench less than a month. Judge Regan, appointed by Governor Pinchot, resigned to place himself in a position for "defense against allegations which have been made against him." Judge Regan's letter to the Governor said a client filed a complaint against him regarding a fee in 1930. After twice dismissing the matter, the Board of Censors of the Bar Association has re-opened the case and referred findings to the Board of Governors of the Association, he stated. Because of this he desires to resume the status of a member of the bar and have the allegations passed upon by the Court of Common Pleas.

FATE OF REPEAL MAY BE READ IN VOTE NEXT WEEK

Three Dixie States Will Go To
The Polls to Cast
Ballots

TWO VOTE ON TUESDAY

By Robert G. Nixon
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 15.—(INS)—Holding the probable fate of the 18th amendment in their grasp, voters in three Dixie states will go to the polls the third week in July in the first test of repeal in the traditionally dry "deep South."

Alabama and Arkansas ballot on repeal ratification July 18 and Tennessee decides the issue two days later.

Though die-hard drys are waging a last ditch fight in a desperate effort to stem the wet tide that has successfully engulfed sixteen states, political observers predict victory for the wets in all three states.

In Alabama, where until this year's recent term of the legislature anything that "looks like, tastes like or smells like beer" was prohibited by state statute and where 3.2 beer is still an outlaw, the outcome is regarded as the particularly critical pivot upon which success or failure of prohibition repeal will hinge.

Alabamians, however, according to a majority of political observers, will vote by a two-to-one majority to ratify the 21st amendment.

The wets will carry Tennessee by a certain margin of at least 50,000 votes, observers in the Volunteer state forecast.

They base their prediction of a wet victory on the fact that the 63 convention delegates will be elected by popular vote with the preponderantly wet city ballot far outweighing possibly dry rural sentiment.

A similar situation holds in Alabama.

The popular vote basis of electing convention delegates was attained only after bitter fights in the two state legislatures, the drys insisting unsuccessfully on the county unit system under which a sparsely populated, remote mountain county would swing the same weight as a county containing the dense populations of the larger cities.

SOUTHAMPTON MAN WILLS SOME MONEY TO CHARITY

Reformed Church, at Southampton, Receives the Sum of $500

OTHER WILLS ARE FILED

DOYLESTOWN, July 15.—The sum of $500 was bequeathed by Joseph McMurray, Upper Southampton, to "North and Southampton Reformed Church," it was learned when the will of the man who died June 29th was probated in the register of wills office.

An income was arranged by the late Mr. McMurray for his widow, Charlotte Maude McMurray, and for his daughter, Mabel Clarkson McMurray, and his son, Alan Gordon McMurray, with the stipulation that at the death of his heirs $2,000 be given to the former church, and the remainder of his estate should go to the Presbyterian Orphanage, 58th Kingsessing avenue, Philadelphia.

A daughter, Mabel Clarkson McMurray, will inherit jewelry, china and glassware, and other household possessions, according to the will.

The $2500 estate of John A. Derstine, of Hilltown, was bequeathed without reservation to his widow, Catharine, but two sons, John D. and Isaac D. Derstine were named the executors.

Judge Thomas Knight, of Edison, will inherit the estate of his sister, Caroline B. Spencer, of Doylestown, who died on May 28. The estate totaled $1069.55.

An inventory was filed in the estate of Margery Black, of Solebury, appraising the estate at $1650.

In the estate of Walter Buckman, of Upper Makefield, letters of administration were granted to Charles Buckman and Watson M. Buckman, amounting to $5,000. The testator died June 22nd.

Real estate holdings included a 180-acre farm, another 75-acre farm, three houses, three bungalows "along the canal," and additional bungalows in Upper Makefield township.

Christian Social Center Is Planned In Wrightstown Twp.

A new social center to be called "Bethlehem on the Neshaminy," is to be started in Wrightstown township. A contract for the purchase of the German farm on the Swamp road, next to the Neshaminy Cliffs has been entered into.

According to the prospectus "it is to be a summer gathering place for Christian people, and particularly a spot where the children from the crowded city may reap the benefits of pure air and enjoy the delightful shade, green grass and cool waters of a beautiful little stream."

In the work of preparation as many unemployed as possible will be used.

ST. ANN'S NINE TOPS HIBERNIANS; SCORE, 3-2

Hibernians Have Won Eleven
Straight Games; Snyder
Has Won Six

LOSERS MADE 3 ERRORS

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE
Result of last night's game
St. Ann's, 3; Hibernians, 2

Two winning streaks were shattered on Sullivan's field last night as the St. Ann's nine topped the Hibernians, 3-2 in one of the finest games played this season. First the eleven game winning streak of the Hibernians went to pieces and then the six-game winning streak of Harold Snyder was broken.

Up until last night Snyder was unbeaten in the Bristol Twilight League and even though he was beaten he twirled in fine style. He gave up but five hits and fanned ten batters. Not one of the three runs scored against him was earned. Errors paved the way for the St. Ann's tallies.

Although they committed three errors, the St. Ann's team played good ball when the Hibs were threatening and several times when the losers had runners in scoring positions a fine play always stopped the rally. St. Ann's had three runners left on base while the losers stranded six.

"Charlie" Whyno hurled for the Purple and Gold and possessed plenty of stuff. He struck out ten batters and his benders had the Hibernian sluggers hitting the breezes all night. Only one pass was issued by the winning twirler.

The St. Ann's nine took the lead in the fourth inning after both sides had been scoreless for three frames. Whyno led off with a single, Oriolito hit to Roe who threw to Gallagher for a force-play but Gallagher allowed the ball to go past him, Whyno reaching third. John struck out, Angelo hit to Joe Dougherty who fumbled, scoring Whyno. DiTanna struck out.

The Hibs tied it up in their part

EMPLOYMENT HERE AND IN THE COUNTY CONTINUES TO GAIN

Bristol Industries and Doylestown Plants Are Very Busy

FEWER ARE ON RELIEF

Orders Still Being Received
And Future Indications
Are Good

Increased industrial activity in Bucks County continues to spread and from various sections come reports of people going back to their employment. There is a decided decrease in the number of people receiving state relief here.

A decided upturn continues here in Bristol and now Doylestown reports industry there running at full tilt.

Both the plants of William H. Grundy Company, Inc., and Warner J. Steel here are busy, as is also the Manhattan Soap Company, and Lucius Beebe & Sons, Inc.

The Hulmeville Hosiery Company at Hulmeville, beginning Monday, will operate on an eight-hour day basis for five days a week, continuing with two shifts as in the past.

One of the County Seat's outstanding mills, the Clear Spring Worsted Mill, is operating on a 54-hour weekly schedule. Almost 60 employees are kept busy on "fall goods." The mill manufactures a cloth used primarily for men's suits. Harris Holmes, when interviewed, expressed the opinion that the present working conditions are bound to continue. He was not able to say just what effect the new working code would have on the industry.

Another of Doylestown's premier establishments—the Derk Manufacturing Company, is working to capacity. Swamped with orders—many of which arrive by special delivery air mail routes—the mill employees, numbering fifty men and women, are kept busy, despite the fact that the holiday, Christmas time, is the rush season for the Derk products.

Many of the products, which are tapestries, when completed, are sent to Chicago, California and Washington. One of the large customers is a Chicago department store, it was explained.

With a weekly production of more than 4,000 pantaloons, the Fretz clothing factory, one of the branch units of the William F. Fretz Clothing Manufacturing enterprise, is at present employing 88 men and women. The workers, many of whom are out-of-town, have been working on an equal amount of Summer and Winter materials. True to form, the workers have not been bothered with any strikers, partly because they have been too busy to be bothered. This industry, incidentally, also maintains a 54-hour working schedule.

The Doylestown Manufacturing Company is working on "full steam." This place of business houses thirty employees who manufacture children's dresses.

Without regard to the Christmas season, the rush season for their products, this industry, one of the County Seat's infant industries, is forging ahead.

With 23 operators, either on a day or night shift, the Doylestown Textile Mill is making hosiery. It was recently taken over by a Jenkintown firm, and since then has been keeping five men on a night shift, and an additional two night laborers.

When interviewed yesterday, it was stated by one of the employees, that when the new code goes into effect, leggers will be allowed two eight-hour shifts, while footers will be permitted only one eight-hour shift. This bit of legislation, it was stated, will cause some confusion.

Sounding a note of warning, David D. Nyce, County Seat contractor, declared the price of building materials is going up. The Nyce Planing Mill, located in the west end of the borough, is employing a half-dozen men.

Continuing its unseasonal advance, factory employment in Pennsylvania showed a further gain of 6.7 per cent from May to June and payrolls increased 14.9, according to a statement today by the Philadelphia Federal Reserve Bank.

The report was based on records submitted by 776 plants employing more than 225,000 workers with an aggregate payroll of $3,695,000.

"All manufacturing groups shared in these gains," said the statement. It added: "These increases are significant, inasmuch as factory employment usually declines a little at this time. For the first time in over three years the total indexes of employment and payrolls were larger than in the same month of the previous year."

Operating time, as reported by three-quarters of the 776 plants, showed a rise of 17 per cent in June with all groups contributing to the increase.

In Delaware, factory employment increased 8 per cent, payrolls 11 per cent and working time 10 per cent from May to June.

NEW SHIFTS IN EUROPE

The instability of the present political alignment is illustrated in reports that a rift between Russia and Germany has appeared and that the Soviet is seeking a closer tie with France.

Russia formerly was a supporter of the revisionists in the attempt to change the Versailles treaty. But, following the ascendancy of Hitler, it did not take very long for Moscow to develop a questioning attitude with respect to Germany. According to reports now from Moscow, the Soviet sees nothing to be obtained from a close relation with Germany and recently an official protest was made to Berlin charging violation of the German-Soviet treaty of 1926. This was seen as the sign of a definite rift between the two nations. It was said to have stimulated the Franco-Soviet economic negotiations which have been under way for a long time.

This change within itself is important, but there are indications that further far-reaching shifts are probable. The Soviet is making special efforts to cultivate the friendship of Poland and of the Little Entente. Czechoslovak newspapers are reviving the old slogan of pan-Slavism. Roumania is seeking to renew negotiations for a non-aggression pact with the Soviet.

Underneath the various moves can be seen the hand of the secret diplomacy of former days. Its fruit in the past usually was bitter. There is not much basis to hope for better results in the future.

THEN AND NOW

It has not been so very many months since Democratic leaders of all ranks and degrees were throwing up their hands in holy horror because cabinet members were taking an active hand in politics. Improprity and neglect of their official duties were among the less serious charges made.

All cabinet members at that time, however, were Republicans. Therein lay the crime.

We have yet to hear or read the first Democratic criticism of Mr. Farley, postmaster general in the Roosevelt administration, for his political activities. He is the boss politician of the administration.

In addition to being postmaster general he is chairman of the Democratic national executive committee. Being head of the party organization and a member of the cabinet and possessing the full confidence of his chief, he is in an excellent position to keep patronage oil applied to the party machinery at points where it is most needed and will do the most good.

But not even this duty along with those connected with his official position are enough to keep him occupied. He finds plenty of time to make a speech here and there where a little encouragement seems to be needed. Recently he found occasion to address a meeting of Michigan Democrats.

"We must in every state do our best to build up strong, active and cohesive party organizations that will function," he told his hearers. He expressed the wish to see Michigan Democrats.

What a world! People starving to death to build armament to keep from getting killed.

HOLLYWOOD, ... The Hollywood Arliss picture for Twentieth Century will not be "Rothschild," but a modern story about a millionaire, who attacks the problem of unemployment.

This was decided yesterday when Darryl Zanuck ordered that the scenario of "Red Tape," written by Sam Mintz and Maude T. Howell, be sent to England for Arliss' approval. As a result of his work on this story, Mintz also was put under long term contract and assigned to work on the scenario of "Rothschild."

Arliss' role in his new vehicle again will be that of a rich man, but this time also an idler. It is only when he comes into actual contact with the tragedy of unemployment that he goes to work to improve conditions.

As matters stand now, the English actor will not return to Hollywood until September. His contract with the Schenck-Zanuck company calls for two pictures a year and he hopes to complete both of them by the end of December.

Publicity-man Lynn Farnol (he represents Samuel Goldwyn) has rented an imposing house in Hollywood—so imposing in fact that a star might well be satisfied to occupy it.

The other night he was giving a dinner for some of his friends, including Ed Finney, a United Artists representative from New York. Finney took in the massive dining-room set, the spotless napery, the shining silver.

"By the way, Lynn," he said, "do you have the whole house?"

HOLLYWOOD PARADE:
An epidemic of rumors have bobbed up about Clark Gable. Each one grows wilder: "He was seriously injured while training for the boxing picture." "It will be months before he returns to the screen."

For the comfort of Gable fans, Clark played 18 holes of golf a week ago. And he is improving steadily.

The place Ann Harding disappears to over week-ends is a cabin hideout up above the old Noah Berry trout farm... Boyish Katharine Hepburn swings a golf club to the tune of the low 80s... Add Marie Dressler to the stars who have taken beach places. Ignoring Malibu and its social life, Marie has taken a small cottage at Playa Del Rey. Fay Wray and John Monk Saunders are her neighbors.

Lola Lane is not mourning. She was dancing to Abe Lyman's music the other night with Bill Cagney... Saw Dorothy Lee with her aviator, Dick Kropp, at the same spot. They're to make a picture called "Sweetheart of Sigma Chi." Scenes of the college crew races here will be incorporated... Doris Warner, whom Mervyn Leroy escorts around Hollywood, works in the New York offices of her family's company. Incidentally, she rates 100 per cent here for being friendly and unspoiled.

Every time Lupe Velez sweeps through the M. G. M. studio she leaves them chuckling or gasping. The other day she showed up in blue trousers and coat. (A La Dietrich). She complained of being hot. "Why not take off your coat?" someone asked.

"No, no," said Lupe, "when I take off my coat I lose my manhood."

DID YOU KNOW—
That Helen Vinson used to go to the University of Texas, and was a champion archer there?

Tinkling bells, and the clink of silver

IN A Chinese fairy story one reads about the Emperor's garden, where rare and colorful plants from all over the world were constantly flowering.

It was the duty of the honorable head gardener to watch for the most beautiful of the blooms and tie to the stem of each a little silver bell. As the flowers swayed in the breeze, the bells tinkled with sweet music. Thus the courtiers and the distinguished visitors strolling along the paths, were sure to see the finest specimens.

This was the Emperor's way of saying "I have something extra fine that you should see: look this way and you'll be repaid."

In the advertising columns of this paper are similar messages addressed to YOU. Read them and you will hear the clink of silver. Our merchants are saying "We have some extra values. We have some especially reasonable articles that you should see. Come to our stores and you will be repaid."

You have nothing to lose when you accept this invitation. In fact, when you fail to do so, you're missing some of the very news for which you bought this paper!

It pays to read all advertisements in this paper know why you came up here—to see her. To make sure that she was really going to be married. Thought it might be a misprint in the papers—ha, ha—I know—I've been watching you whenever her name was said—I know—

"Look here, Ruth—that's no way to talk. I—"

"No it isn't—say anything but the truth! That's what you believe in doing. What's the matter with you, are you afraid? If you wanted her why did you sit back and let Barstow grab her?"

"Joan—I wouldn't stand in her way—"

"No—just in my way. Just break my heart for Rollo. I know you, Bill. And you do like me. I know you do. I wouldn't care if you didn't. I wouldn't run after someone who didn't want me—but I can tell you do. I know—I am no fool. Oh love me, Bill—love me—you can't have Joan—"

He took her by the hands tight in his. "Ruth, for heaven's sake, don't rub it in. I do think a lot of you, but—I don't know—I'm broke off in confusion. Sounds silly to say it, but I guess you can only really love one woman. At least, that's how it is with me. I wish I didn't, but I always have—always will—"

Ruth's face was scarlet now, she was beyond reason, beyond control. She knew she was doing everything wrong, frightening him away, undoing all the good, but she couldn't stop now—it had to come out—

"Yes, you'll go on your whole life, worshipping at the shrine of that plaster saint—making a fool of yourself over her. I know. I know plenty more, too—plenty that would make you see she's no saint. I have a good mind to tell you—it'll do you good—you have it coming—"

She held fast to his coat, holding on with all her strength—"No you don't—no you don't walk out till I tell you! Right now—right this minute she's on a wild party with Curtis Barstow—nealed off to a love nest in the country. And if you want to know how I know she's gone with Barstow I'll tell you—I—"

Her words ended in a shriek, a terror, agonized shriek. He had seized her, was shaking her, as a terrier shakes a rat. Her neck was breaking, her eyes were burning out of their sockets.

With a groan he flung her on the bed, and leaned against it, his face working. For the first time in his life he had hurt a woman. He had shaken her brutally. And to think that only a moment ago he had had her arms around his neck, feeling drawn to her, almost loving her.

He covered his face with his hands. "Johnnie—Johnnie—"

The minutes passed. Ruth's whimpering cries ceased. Slowly she struggled to her feet, her eyes glued on the man whose strong broad hands had tightened on her shoulders.

Quietly, carefully, hardly breathing, she began to move to the door... inch by inch... inch by inch... Ruth was almost at the door now. In another moment she'd be safe, in the hall, calling for help...

Carefully she turned the knob, never taking her eyes off of the man leaning against the bed. The door wouldn't open... stuck again... darn it—darn it—she shook it gently, a little harder, it wouldn't open! She pulled on it with all her strength, and the sticky varnish gave with a faint screech...

"No—not until you tell me where Joan is—where Joan is—do you hear me?" The squeak of the door had roused him. His hands were on her shoulders again, holding her fast.

She began to whimper. "You're hurting me—let me go—I'll scream—I'll scream so loud—"

"Shut up, you little fool—keep quiet! But he released his hold. "I'm not going to hurt you—just tell me about Joan—tell me—"

"You did hurt me—you did—"

"I know," his hands dropped heavily to his sides. "I must have been crazy. Forgive me."

"You shouldn't have done it," she said unsteadily. Her eyes rested on him accusingly, amorously... he was so big, so simple and strong. "I didn't know you were such a cave man! Wonder you didn't give me a black eye!" She began to giggle helplessly. "I didn't know they made 'em like that any more—"

CHAPTER I

In the car again, scrubbing at her sticky hands with an ineffectual handkerchief she said, "I am sorry Curtis—I shouldn't have taken so long—"

"It's all right," he said, and increased the speed, over a level stretch between two hills.

He was lost in his thoughts again. His secret, troubled thoughts. "She smiled at that old man who sold hot dogs, just the way she does at me," he thought bitterly. "A dirty old man with gray whiskers. And I used to think it was just for me—that light in her eyes and the flashing smile like sunshine... the flush—"

—was a hot dog vender and a man, say dog.

"She looked at him when he gave her the extra pickle, the way she looked at me when I put my ring on her hand... the love that I thought would be mine, already squandered on someone else, some boy, some worthless loafer standing out in front of a poolroom now... Oh, what a fool I've been, what a blind, trusting fool..."

Her hand closed over his arm again. "Curtis, you look so stern. It—it frightens me—"

He came back with a start, tried to answer naturally. "I'm not stern—just thinking that's all—"

"About what?"

"Oh—business."

"Don't, Curtis. Please don't. This is our first day together for so long. We're always rushing, always letting people and business come between us. Can't we go slower while we're in the lovely country, with the sunshine and the hills to see? It doesn't matter if they have to wait for us, does it?"

"Not so far as I'm concerned."

"Then let's forget them, and just go as slowly as we want to, shall we?" She laughed and drew a little nearer. "I'm so sick of people—even nice people like the Larsons and your mother. Let's be terribly selfish, and poke along and—Oh Curtis—look—poppies—millions—of them, under the fence... could we... would it be perfectly contemptible of us to stop, and get some—please—"

He looked at the orange field of poppies, and the laughing girl beside him, her flawless skin tinged with gold in the sun.

"Perfectly contemptible of us," he said, and his heart skipped a beat. She was so lovely... so lovely...

She leaned under the barbed wire of the fence, and reached ahead into the poppies. "Aren't they beautiful—did you ever see such huge ones?"

"No," he said, smiling faintly, "I never did."

"Neither did I," she started to say, and stopped. The little patch of them she and Bill had found on the high road last summer... Bill must everything remind her of Bill? Must he be always in her thoughts, always coming between her and Curtis when she wanted so to love...

With a little half strangled sob she flung herself into his arms, crushing the blossoms against his coat. "Oh, Curtis—love me—love me a lot!"

His arms closed about her, almost automatically. "Love all poppies and dogs—it's all one to her," he thought. "The same degree of intensity—just a passing mood. Well, I know now... I know how much these sudden bursts of affection are worth..."

"Come," he said at last, "we must be going on to the cabin. The roads are dangerous up there after dark—"

"Oh yes," she cried, conscience-stricken. "And what time did she leave, Curtis? Awfully early!"

"Oh, some time before we did—come on!"

it from a druggist, real prescription whiskey. There are two glasses there somewhere. Now aren't you glad you came?"

She stole a quick look at herself in the mirror over the dressing table which was doing duty as buffet. Her hair looked terrible—simply terrible—but never mind, the lunch was upstairs to be laid, and she had him waiting at last—that was the main thing.

"Say, I didn't know you could cook!" he said, passing his plate back for a second helping of crab. "There's lots of things you don't know about me," she said. "I don't know—but people usually get the wrong idea about me, Willum. They think if a girl is good looking she's—well—not domestic. I am. I just love to cook, and make things homey, or I would if I had the right fellow to do it for. I get so darned lonesome all alone. Don't you ever get lonesome, Willum?"

"Oh yes—sometimes."

"Well, now that you're back in town—"

"But I'm not going to be here long," he said quickly. "I'll have to be going back soon—"

"Bill—you aren't!"

"I have to, Ruthie."

She rose to take the plates away. "I'll miss you."

"Come on down south, and marry Rollo, and you won't miss me," he said, avoiding her eyes.

A little spasm of pain passed over her bright face. "I told you I'd only marry for love or money," she said. "I meant it."

"Rollo will have plenty of money, and he loves me. I love him. I love you spoil all that."

"I—why Ruth—that's a crazy thing—"

"No it isn't a crazy thing to say, Willum. It's the truth. I'm going to say it. I've been wanting to say it long enough. I haven't been able to see Rollo, since I met you—"

Her soft arms were about his neck now, her lips on his cheek. "Willum—do you hate me so much? Why, Willum, you seemed to like me pretty well. I haven't forgotten the fun we had together if you have. You seemed to like me pretty well, then—"

He jumped up, and shook himself with a rather unsuccessful laugh. "See here, Ruth, this is getting dangerous. Why, what would Rollo say to me homing in on his preserves this way, and you flattering me—"

"I'm not flattering you. Oh, he serious—he serious!" she cried, her brown eyes wet and starry. "Bill Martin, you know I'm not fooling. I ought to have more sense, but darn it—I haven't. Don't go away. Don't Willum, darling. Stay here with Ruthie." Her arms were tight around his neck now, she was holding him close.

Her voice went on, crooningly. "You know you like me—you know you do, Willum—I can tell. And you aren't bawling in on Rollo's preserves, 'cause he's out of the running—kiss me, honey!... No—not that way—miserable little peck, as if we'd been married ten years—or twenty—Willum."

"Ruth—have a heart! I'm Rollo's friend—"

"The devil with Rollo. Say you're going to stay—just a little while, Willum—just another week—come on—that's a teeny, tiny little bit to promise—one little bit of a week—"

"I've got to go back—right away, I only came up—"

He was standing up now, looking around for his hat. She saw him, knew that he was going in a moment. "I know why you came up," she cried suddenly, her eyes blazing, the red mounting to her

PAY UP—CHEER UP!

OUR SMALL LOAN SERVICE WILL HELP YOU DO BOTH

Often when persons begin to feel a little "blue" over their financial affairs, they take courage and "come through" if they can get temporary assistance.

The business man may secure a loan from a bank to pay his debtors and "ride him over" until he is able to "get on his feet again." This loan helps him greatly and he is soon in a position to repay the bank.

Likewise a small loan to householders is the means of helping them meet an emergency, calling for money to pay bills, rent, taxes, and interest on their home, building and loan dues, for sickness, and other needs.

YOU CAN BORROW FROM $10 TO $300

LINENS OF UNUSUAL WEAVES FEATURE NEW STYLES FOR SUMMER

By Alice Langelier

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—(INS)—Linens were never lovelier than the ones smart women are wearing this summer. They come in unusual weaves never woven before and colors too, are more colorful than those to be found in the rainbow.

A pale pink linen has eel-gray chalk marks and a black and white has the scarf bordered with silver fox.

Mrs. Benjamin Rogers is wearing Schiaparelli's yellow linen on the Riviera this summer. It is cut entirely on the bias and is fastened at the back of the neck and at the belt with large metal clips. She has a yellow wool cardigan to wear with it.

Mrs. Justin Haynes who is returning to America for the season, has a multi-colored striped linen with a navy wool cardigan. She also wears a cape of white silk canvas over a navy crepe frock.

A blue-striped silk linen has a jacket of plain blue woolen crepe and an eel-colored canvas has a jacket of orange and eel.

Mrs. Ramon Santamarina, of the South American colony, is wearing a brown quinquina silk linen with trimming of an incrustated band of striped material forming a collar and waistcoat effect. Pale blue and navy linen are worn by the Princesse Sixte de Bourbon-Parma and the blouse is of pale blue linen.

Linens are particularly smart for the walking-ensemble this year and there are stunning little jackets to wear over tub frocks of floral, striped or spotted designs.

EDGELEY A. C. TO MEET JEFFERSON NINE

Tomorrow afternoon on the Edgely field, Jefferson A. C. will play the Edgely A. C. in a Bristol Twilight League tilt. This game was originally scheduled for last night but was called off because Edgely had an engagement at Roehling.

Both of these teams are still in the second half race. Edgely has only been defeated once, while the Jefferson nine has been beaten twice.

"Bill" Hart will most likely do the pitching for the Mules with Britton receiving. For Edgely, Minkema or Harmsen will hurl with Hibbs catching. The remainder of the line-up will be the same as the nights the teams are playing twilight ball.

With their seven-game winning streak intact, Edgely A. C. will meet the strong Glen Willow Club, of Philadelphia. This is the second meeting between these clubs as earlier in the season it took the Edgely nine thirteen innings to win over the Willow boys.

Last week the Glen Willow team defeated the Towanda A. A. for their fifth consecutive win and tomorrow's fray will see at least one winning streak shattered.

"Ike" Watson will twirl for Edgely, with Bruce behind the plate.

Bristol Park A. A. will play the Cubans, leaders of the Bristol Suburban League, this afternoon, and tomorrow will meet the Furmans, also of the Bristol Suburban League.

Bristol Park divided a twin bill with the Croydon Y. M. A. last week and are out to beat their foes from the Suburban League.

Newport Road Men's Club will meet Harriman F. C. at Newportville. Newport Road is a member of the Bristol Suburban League, while the Harriman club has been playing independent ball.

Davis will do the pitching for the Newporters, with Clancy behind the platter.

The Washington A. A., who won the independent championship for the Young Italians last Sunday, will play the Independents, of the Bristol Twilight League, on St. Ann's field.

The Washington team will use Antonelli and Galione as their battery, with the Independents using J. Antonelli and Calia.

This fray will start at two o'clock, sharp.

On St. Ann's field, at six o'clock, Jefferson A. C. will play the Frankford Blue Birds. Jefferson has been having a very successful season playing over the week-ends, and only last week took a double-header from the 34th Ward and Mount Holly.

The Mules usually have a revamped line-up for their Sunday frays, and tomorrow will be no different.

The White Elephants of the Bristol Suburban League will meet the Pineville A. A. on the Pineville field. The Elephants defeated Pineville earlier in the season.

CHANGE SCHEDULE

The Bristol A. A.-A. O. H. scheduled game for next Tuesday in the Lower Bucks County League will be played on Monday night on Sullivan's field. There will also be a meeting of the Lower Bucks County League Monday night in the Hibernian Hall.

LANGHORNE, July 15.—"Where's Grandma?" is the title of a play which the Langhorne M. E. Epworth League will stage July 27th. This will be given in I. O. O. F. hall, here, with proceeds to benefit the Epworth League institute fund. Several delegates will be sent from the local league to the institute at Paradise Falls, July 31st to August 7th.

BRISOL-BURLINGTON CLUB WINS PISTOL MATCH

The Bristol-Burlington Rifle and Pistol Club and Pennsylvania State Highway Patrol staged a spectacular and hard-fought pistol match at the club range in Croydon, yesterday. Bristol-Burlington Club captured team honors with a score of 1752, while the State Highway Patrol scored 1698.

Patrolman Rothmel was high man with 97%; followed closely by Lloyd Cross, of the Bristol-Burlington Club, with a score of 94%.

Each man fired upon the Army "L" Target at 15 and 25 yards, slow and rapid fire; ten shots at each time and distance.

The highway patrol entered seven men, and the Bristol-Burlington Club 13, and the first five of each team qualified for the team score.

Club members state they appreciate the sportsmanship of the highway patrol who permitted the use of 22 calibre weapons with which most of the club is equipped. The highway patrol fired a more difficult weapon—the .35 calibre special.

The teams scored as follows: Bristol-Burlington—Lloyd Cross, 94%; Donald Moyer, 90%; Aubrey Severns, 88%; Earl Werline, 86%; P. Titus, 80%.

Penna. State Highway Patrol—Rothmel, 97%; Kelley, 92%; Diem, 91%; Fleming, 80%; Evans, 65%.

Messrs. Schroder, Green, West, Holland, Sweeney, Federick, Ratcliffe and Johnson fired for the Bristol-Burlington Club. Chief Jones and Officer Jack Healey also fired with the state highway patrol.

St. Ann's Nine Tops Hibernians; Score, 3-2

Fate of Repeal May Be Read in Vote Next Week

Senator Robinson (D), of Arkansas, has predicted a repeal victory in his state.

Repealists also point jubilantly to desecrations that have decimated dry ranks. Ministers and congressmen, staunch defenders of the 18th amendment for many years, have swung over to the wet side of the fence in large numbers, actively campaigning for repeal.

Rep. John McDuffie (D), veteran first district congressman of Alabama, said he had found "after many years of supporting the 18th amendment that it is a failure" and urged Alabama voters to cast it out of the Constitution.

A former Tennessee Methodist bishop joined the repealist ranks in his state.

Rep. Stagall (D), of Alabama, who has always campaigned in the past on a dry platform, added his voice to those forecasting certain repeal victory.

Drys have carried their fight to the rural areas of the three states in a back-to-the-wall stand for their cause, but the spirit of the crusader which once electrified the land has diminished in vigor with age and their listeners have dwindled from thousands to dozens.

The repealists are concentrating their efforts in the cities, counting on a record vote.

The result in Alabama, Arkansas and Tennessee is expected to be a certain barometer of the national outcome.

Iowa and West Virginia, dry strongholds of the past already have been lost to the drys.

What Alabama and the other sister Dixie states do, so likewise other dry territory such as Maine, Oklahoma, Kansas, Idaho, Colorado and South Dakota are expected to view the issue.

Should even one of the three Southern states facing repeal action this month swing in beside the other 16 that have eschewed prohibition, national aridness, repealists insist, will have become a lost cause.

Should two or all three vote wet, erasure of the 18th amendment from the Constitution by the end of the year is virtually assured.

WHILE the orthodox method of attaining superiority in any sport is to single out the department in which one has natural aptitude, then hammer away at training in that one department until near-perfection is reached, once in a great while some youngster comes along who doesn't follow the beaten path, and who manages to show amazing proficiency in several departments of the same sport.

Such a rare little person is Katherine Rawls, the tiny aquatic sensation from Florida. Miss Rawls is not only a swimmer, but a diver. She can swim backstroke, breaststroke, sprint and distance with equal facility—also dive and with a great deal of danger to all opponents. Miss Rawls will compete in the forthcoming Women's Nationals at Jones' Beach, New York. She is a rare person in many ways. For example, Miss Rawls—don't call her Kitty—once had a big argument with an official concerning the way she was placed in an important Olympic tryout. The official said that she finished third in the breast-stroke swim. Miss Rawls insisted that she had finished fourth. There was an argument, and Miss Rawls won out. That's the kind of sportsmanship this little lady from the South displays. At the age of fifteen, Miss Rawls has carved her name on some big trophies and stands an excellent chance of grabbing off several titles at the big meet. She now holds no less than four outdoor National titles, and will be called on to defend three of her crowns in the Jones' Beach affair.

OFFER $1000 REWARD FOR KILLERS

Philadelphia, July 15.—Officials of the Philadelphia plant of the Allied Kid Company, where a policeman was slain yesterday by gunmen, who escaped with a $6720 payroll, today offered a $1000 reward for the capture of the four killers. The patrolman was Charles Stockberger, a veteran of the force, who was shot down as he raised his hand in compliance with the gunmen's demands. Detectives are working on the theory that Stockberger was slain because he recognized one of the bandits. Twelve suspects arrested last night were released today after police made a check-up of their whereabouts at the time of the slaying.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—Soren Lund, 30, foreman in the General Electric plant here, had a narrow escape from death recently when he opened his back door and a bomb exploded. The bomb had been fastened so it would explode when the door was opened. Lund was uninjured.

Lucky Cavanaugh

Quoting Shakespeare wasn't a failing of Lucky Cavanaugh's. He wasn't an actor, he was a gentleman gambler. But when he met Leni Luneska, there occurred to him Romeo's joyful expression on first seeing Juliet. Here was a hunch he would play to the limit, even if Luneska was the most aloof, unapproachable star in Hollywood... the one star to whom the world's worship meant nothing! Don't miss this exciting romance of hectic Hollywood...

New Star on Tennis Horizon

The "Helen Wills Moody of the next decade" is what Pop Fuller, Californian tennis expert, calls 12-year-old Ann Morgan (left), who created a sensation in the recent State tourney at Berkeley, Cal. Pop, who developed such net stars as Mrs. Moody, shown (right) at start of her tennis career, and Helen Jacobs, says little Miss Morgan has everything that makes a champ.
